ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A torque sensor includes input and output axes coupled through a torsion bar, magnetic media attached to the input and output axes and having magnetic tracks magnetized at a predetermined pitch and magnetic detection elements disposed opposite to the magnetic media to be sensitive to the magnetic tracks. At least two magnetic tracks for detection of torque are formed with a magnetic phase difference in each of the magnetic media attached to the input and output axes.